Dissertation can simply be defined as a report on a research project or an outspread reasoning of a topic. In simple terms it can be defined as any formal discourse in speech or writing.  It can also be defined as a written essay, treatise, or thesis, and are especially written by candidates for the degree of Doctor or Philosophy. The term dissertation is also known as thesis in the general sense. In more simple terms it can be said as the long piece of writing on some particular subject. Dissertation can also be said as the long piece of work on some topic under study. It includes the use of different research methods by which large data is gathered for making the research work more and more viable and adequate. It helps the researcher to find the detailed knowledge about the topic of research, so that it can be utilized by the other people concerned with the topic. A dissertation is a part of a research paper consisting of a long essay on a particular subject as a requirement to get a doctor of Philosophy degree by a university. It is prepared by a researcher at any doctorate level course. It is a written project used for final assessment of a degree which includes different levels of study in different countries. The dissertation, which at many places is also called thesis, provides an opportunity to the students to fill in the blanks between their theoretical learning and its practical implementation. It is a scholarly work conducted independently by the student which is under the direction of a full-time GSEP faculty member. A research paper includes the objective, approach, procedure, findings and conclusion of the research.
