A simulator is a device, which is created to provide the real environment artificially. driving simulation is created to provide practical training to the drivers, to assess the drivers and for many such things.

Simulation involves making the model first and then providing all the features or characteristics of the original one to that model. In driving simulation, the model of the vehicle is made first. Then it is provided with all live features. Various types of driving simulators are used. They include train, bus, tractor, car and many such simulators where training is required and simulator hire options are available. People are provided training with simulator when training has to be provided about the critical conditions of driving. It is not possible to provide training under real critical conditions. It may be about driving in hilly region, snow covered terrain or where there are no roads. A simulator helps in providing training the person and making him capable of driving under extreme conditions. This is useful for both learners and experienced drivers. For those who are in the learning stage, this provides tips on how to counter the bad situations and adopt safe driving skills. For experienced drivers, simulation driving helps in honing their driving skills and becoming more skilled and safe drivers.

The other main application of a driving simulator is found in imparting driving training to impaired persons. It is also used in assessing driver performance and driver responses to the stimulus. Thus gauging the abilities and handling capacities of the driver under not so good circumstances. The major use of simulators is found in entertainment zone. Simulator games are the most enjoyed ones and are in good demand as they provide real experience. They expect the player to have real skills and give the real feelings in all the ways. The simulator hire is also possible for those in need.

Driving simulation training is very essential for passenger vehicle drivers, as they have to take care of the passengers.
