Psychic Info: How Horoscope Wheels Work by Yuri Romanov

Article published on February 20th 2012 | Spirituality

A horoscope chart, also called horoscope wheel, is a graphic illustration of astrological symbols and information. Often, this wheel is used to plot the birth date of a person. Afterwards, the birthdate is compared to the corresponding symbol (also known as the zodiac sign).

Horoscopes have fascinated humanity for many centuries now. Since ancient times, people have consulted astrologers, divination experts, soothsayers, and prophets to receive an accurate reading or prediction for specific aspects of their lives. This fortune telling method dates back to Sumerian, Egyptian and Mayan civilisations. Incidentally, each major civilisation that sprung up in history have their own version of astrology prediction tools and methods.

Today, birthcharts and horoscopes come in handy form. If an individual wants to know detailed predictions and insights regarding his or her zodiac sign, all that needs to be done is to read the daily newspaper or magazine. However, in ancient times, astrology readings are much more complicated. In Egypt alone, people who are interested in mastering astrology and the ability to read natal charts and birth signs spend an entire lifetime learning their craft.

Even in the time of the gypsies, horoscope readings are popular among the masses. Initially, gypsy psychic readers start their predictions by getting the basic information about the person who is requesting a reading. Those basic information include exact date and time of birth, place of birth, coordinates in terms of latitude and longitude, and a few more others.

After extracting basic information from an individual, the psychic reader then uses the natal charts available and begins to indicate exact planetary positions at the time of a person's birth. This means that the astrologer determines how the planets, as well as other heavenly bodies, are positioned during the specific birth date of an individual.

Aside from positions of celestial bodies during time of birth, astrologers and psychic readers also indicate how our life elements interact with each other in order to determine our destiny. In classical Greek teachings, as well as in modern science and cosmology, there are four elements that dominate in the universe Fire, Air, Earth, and Water.

Each element coincides with a particular set of attitudes, traits, or inclinations of any individual throughout life. Fire, air, earth, and water signs are provided by astrologers for people who want a sneak peek of their destiny.

It would take an entire book to explain how horoscope and astrology works. The important thing to remember for anyone who wants an accurate prediction is to be aware of the basics of how to read birth charts and element signs. This way, one can be assured that he will not be taken advantaged of by people who offers inaccurate readings at extremely high rates.
