Australia seems to be hot favorites in the Test series against New Zealand which is going to start from 1 December to 5 December in Brisbane. Although New Zealand have a sniff as they haven't won a Test in Australia in 26 years but they looking forward to have the taste of winning in Australia. The key point is Australian team is also suffering defeat and new comers are not coming up to the mark to attract attention as when Bret Lee was included in the team for the first time he created loud sense at that time, however, Pat Cummins is a new vow for Australian team for this series.

Moreover, John Wright said with regard to Gabba's bounce, "It can be challenging, there is that adjustment and that's why your first half-hour of your innings is really important, and that's something we've got two days to work on. But I'm pretty hopeful we'll cope if there is extra bounce. There is a tendency to overestimate the pace and the bounce when you come to Australia. Generally they're very good batting conditions. We're just building quietly â€¦ I feel we've gathered a little bit of confidence from the trip to Zimbabwe, we were together for nearly a month, then coming here with good performances in the first-class game at home. We're pleased with our preparation, it's like anything, we're going to have to concentrate very hard on the first two hours or the first day, and then take it from there. Certainly from experience any cricket team, if you can get them under pressure, any team is vulnerable."

However, it is not a fun that we usually experience at the shopping malls and club house while having practice with cricket bowling machine. This would be a considerable series between two rivals Australia and New Zealand. As though Australian team have been practicing with cricket bowling machine but New Zealand also have potential batting line-up to fight against Australia at par.

John Wright said with regard to New Zealand's performance, "It is different because it's Test match cricket and it's a big occasion and that applies to them as well. Two of those players were actually involved in the Emerging Players Tournament in July, and we've got some of our players who were at that tournament also. So from our point of view we know a bit about them as well. It will be different but they are in the same boat we are, making their debut and we've got a number of lads who haven't played a lot of Test cricket so it is a good opportunity. They had an impressive last Test as a team, but we know that if we can achieve some of the goals we set ourselves, that will give us a good chance of getting what we'd like in this series. We think that we've got the players that can do very well against this team."
