Pontoon Boat Guide understands what countless pontoon boat owners have discovered over the years, owning a pontoon boat is more than a recreational activity. It is a boating lifestyle choice. And as you make memories with your family on a new pontoon boat, you'll find that the next generation of family members embraces that choice and carries it forward to make memories of their own.

The most important element in the pontoon boat lifestyle, of course, is the pontoon boat itself. It's going to be the platform from which you launch every special activity, from sunset cruises, romantic dinners and family barbecues to pontoon fish boat tournaments, camping excursions and laughter-filled tubing adventures. There are a variety of best pontoon boats from which to choose, so once you've decided to buy one, you face the next big decision: What pontoon boat or pontoon deck boat is right for you and your family?

To best answer that question, you need to consider how you plan to use the pontoon boat. Do you hope to do some pontoon boat fishing while the family sunbathes and explores the beach? Would you like to go camping? Are you interested in watersports, such as waterskiing and wakeboarding? Discuss these questions with your partner and the rest of your family, and then take a look at our Pontoon Boat Selector, which will walk you through the selection process and provide suggestions for models you might want to consider based on the features and amenities you desire.

Catch a few fish while the kids are exploring the beach with a pontoon fish boat. Or, given the spacious layout, consider a group outing! Ask a few friends to join you on a fishing trip, and if you have fellow anglers in your best pontoon boat community, think about organizing a fishing tournament. It's true: You can have the perfect fishing boat and the perfect family-and-friends boat, all in one.

Pontoon boats prove to provide a healthy lifestyle, psychologically and physiologically, because it relieves stress and encourages connection with family and friends. Yet the health benefits don't end there.

Because pontoon boating is an outdoor adventure, it encourages active pursuits such as waterskiing, wakeboarding, kneeboarding, tubing, snorkeling and swimming. It also ensures that every member of the family will be spending time in the fresh air, cruising, beachcombing, observing nature, stargazing... the list goes on and on.

That's particularly important for today's children, who are bombarded with television, the Internet, video games, social networking and other electronic media from a shockingly early age. Numerous studies have shown that American children who spend most of their time in front of a screen are more likely to be overweight and are more likely to feel detached from the natural world; and clearly, kids today are spending less time outside than their parents and grandparents did.

You don't need to tell your kids what's good for them. Just get them out on the water. Once they're on a new pontoon boat, they'll be having so much fun they won't remember why they used to want to stay indoors in the first place.
