AT&T with HTC One Smartphone Release and Explode by Shown Tait

Article published on March 30th 2012 | Technology

The coming summer can bring some good news for the users of HTC and AT&T. A news has been spread prevalently that release of most awaited HTC One X and AT&T One X, of both the units have now been tested. As talking about the date of release of the respective products, there is a lot of pace in the development and testing of HTC One X but it is being released in U.K. in the month of April and according to a the news flash AT&T has decided to make the product release in the month of May, though there no any official confirmation has been made as yet.

However, there has been prepared a release of specifications and the features of One X of AT&T. This smartphone is enabled with Snapdragon platform of S4 series with a processor of 1.5 Gigahertz of Dual core type running on an Operating System of Android type with 4.0 Ice cream sandwich configuration. The latter is most recent type of Android Operating System in the market. Apart from U.S. it may be available in Non LTE One X with Quad Core Processor type. It has 4.7 inches of screen with HD Display. AT&T One X is loaded with front camera of 1.3 Megapixels and back camera of 8 Megapixels enabled to make High Definition (HD) video recording.

There seems to be a new disappointment for U.S. buyers for getting a Dual processor instead of Quad core, but in reality there has been no any such thing, because of the Snapdragon processor of S4 series the performance and multitasking of this smartphone is not at all affected. Even its comparison with Galaxy Nexus has been pursued, nevertheless, the result was in favor of AT&T's One X.

On the other hand, One X from HTC has been appreciated for its Sensory Imaging Software which helps to take remarkable images, HTC One X deals has making a resemblance with Inspire 4G but lesser in weight than the former. So at the present moment, the Smartphone buyers will be much more inclined towards One X as there has not been any declaration or affirmation of release of AT&T's One X.
