Group Hotels and Accommodations in India by Julia Roger

Article published on June 11th 2012 | Travel

India has become one of the most sought tourist destination in recent times. India's amazing diversity offers everything one could ask for while on a holiday and a holiday without a comfortable stay is incomplete. India has various state of the art hotels to cater to its ever-growing tourism industry.

There are various group hotels in India, which offer modern day facilities at par with world standards. One of the major group hotels in India is the Ambassador Group Hotels. These hotels are situated in the main cities of India like Mumbai, Chennai, and Aurangabad. The ITDC, a public sector corporation, established in 1966, offers a wide range of tourism services. Some of the ITDC Group Hotels are The Ashok, Delhi, Lake View Ashok, Bhopal, and Hotel Jammu Ashok. Le Meridian Group Hotels is known for its luxury and excellent hospitality. It has its hotels in many countries of the world as well as in major Indian cities. The Oberoi Group Hotels is an epitome of luxury and hospitality. It owns and manages various luxury hotels in India, Egypt, Indonesia, Mauritius, and Saudi Arabia. Another major group hotel is the Taj Group Hotels. There are around 75 Taj Hotel Resorts and Palaces in Delhi, Jaipur, Udaipur, and many other places of the country.

Group accommodation in India includes the Ashok Group, Oberoi Group Hotels, and Le Meridian Hotels. Apart from these accommodations, the resorts too are gradually making a mark of their own. Several of the resorts are located in the pristine locations and forests. Some of the states in India have economies based on revenue generated by tourism like Kerala, Sikkim, Himachal Pradesh, and Rajasthan. Tourists in Kerala can enjoy the group accommodation immensely as they can get the opportunity of living on plush houseboats. Tourists can also get a taste of the golden era in the royal state of Rajasthan as they can stay in the classic and flamboyant palaces that have now been converted into five star hotels. These are some of the most attractive alternatives available for the tourists as far as group hotels or group accommodation in India is concerned. Such modes of living are becoming greatly popular among foreign tourists.
