Barcelona has all kinds of things ready for tourists and even the locals who take the time to behold the beauty of the city. It has monuments, beaches and other interesting natural grounds as well as parks. The parks in the city are beautiful and valuable to Barcelona and they include the following:

Park Guell: this is one of the most popular parks in Barcelona and is Antonio Gaudiâ€™s design. It is actually a world heritage site adding to the popularity. It is a park that stirs different kinds of feelings in visitors who come here to behold the beauty of the park. The amazing works of Gaudi can be seen by the stairway from the main entrance and they are simply breathtaking. It is a park that is accessible by bus from the city.

Ciudadella Park: most of Barcelona important culture and art museums are found in this park. There is also a wonderful lake within the park where you can find boats for hire to do the rounds around the lake. There are also sculptures of great interests and the park also serves as an exhibition space in different seasons. Other interesting things within the park include the palaces that showcase amusing architectural works and fountains as well as gardens all of which make the park worth spending some time in.

Laberint Park: this park dates back to 1791 and remains to be an attraction to many especially because of the ornamented railings, pavilions and stairways that have different levels. The gardens are also adorned with mythological statues adding some spice to the natural settings. It is one of the best parks you can choose to be in while in Barcelona.

Guinardo Park: it is mainly a forest and has interesting intricate topography in all cardinal points. It is accessible by bus and offers the perfect ground to have a picnic or simply have some alone time to think or meditate.

Jardins Park: it is a park that has royal palace gardens that are nothing short of beautiful and breathtaking. The design of the park is classical and has large trees and flower beds that used to belong to the royal estate that originally stood here.

Industrial Park: the park has industrial aspects and charming aspects that make it worth visiting while spending a holiday in Barcelona. Other parks that are worth visiting in Barcelona include Park Clot, Joan Miro Park and Estacio Del Nord Park among others.
