On the southern side of Alicante you will find an exotic location, Murcia which has habitants of just 300000. The place is around 75kms from Alicante and is considered to be one of the important places of tourist's attractions. Though there is no airport in Murcia, you could reach this place by bus, car or any other form of road transport from Alicante.

Climate and the landscape are the two important factors that will attract tourists every year. Besides its wonderful beaches, Murcia is also known for many other aural scenes that will surely keep your life relaxed. Explore around the various open areas around Murcia and you will be amazed to find many as you travel across the place.

Murcia is known for its vegetable farms as it has a strong water irrigation system. The population mostly consists of the Tribes of the Iberia and so you will find a rich flavor in their cuisine as well. Their rice items, baked meat, stews and other food delicacies are worth a taste.

Several places are worth visiting in Murcia and the one that you cannot afford to miss is the Santa Maria Cathedral. It brings back the old history and you will find the construction of this cathedral totally unique. As you spend some time among these historical buildings you will find peace within you. There are several entry points into the cathedral but all of them lead you to the common area where everything seems mystical. The different entry points will end at the mayor that has been embedded with gold and it gives out the natural golden shine as you enter the huge mayor. There is also museum inside the cathedral where you will find number of historical items on display. Murcia Bishop lives just outside the cathedral in a residence called Palacia Episcopal.

Another place to visit while in Murcia is Carthage, historical town that gives you an insight into the Iberian history. The museum in this city is worth a visit and is an Archaeological museum. Another town that needs to be explored during your vacation to Murcia is Caravaca de la Cruz. No specific places are there in this town but the entire town looks charming and a walk down the narrow streets is all that is enough to keep you refreshed and make your holiday enjoyable. You will also find very many hotels and restaurants catering to different needs of the tourists in Murcia.
