Plan a Wedding in Austin Texas by William Hauselberg

Article published on February 14th 2012 | Travel

If you're one of the lucky couples getting married in Austin, Texas, you've chosen a vibrant city in which to hold your nuptials. Austin is filled with beautiful parks, regal cathedrals, luxurious mansions and outdoor scenery that makes the perfect backdrop for a wedding ceremony.

Before the Wedding

Whether you're planning a wedding as big as Texas, or a small event with only your closest family and friends who are from Austin TX wedding suites offer a good place for the bride to stay out of the eyesight of the groom and to get ready for a nearby ceremony. Many hotels offer beautiful lobbies or atriums where pictures can be taken of the female portion of the wedding party as the bride prepares for her big moment. Spending the night in Austin TX suites expands the special day and takes a lot of stress and pressure off the bride's family as the hotel can entertain, feed and offer a place to rest.

During the Ceremony

Consider turning the wedding in a true Austin, Texas themed event. Encourage guests to come in their hats and boots. Have an outdoor wedding and build two campfires next to one another, then join them together at the end to symbolize the two lives joining as one. Of course, you'll also want to add in some tried and true traditions, such as wearing something new, borrowed, old and blue. Consider ending the ceremony with a "Yeehaw" instead of the same old clapping. If you are looking for something a bit more elegant, then Austin offers wedding venues that will help you plan a more formal affair.

After the Ceremony

Once the ceremony ends, some couples celebrate by throwing rice or blowing bubbles. These are excellent traditions that guests enjoy. However, if you prefer something unusual try releasing doves, sending up balloons in the wedding colors or driving off in a Cinderella carriage. It might be tempting to leave for the honeymoon right away, but staying an extra night in Austin TX wedding suites can help you enjoy the time after your wedding and wake up well rested for your honeymoon trip. By staying in the same Austin TX suites for the night before the wedding and the night after the wedding, you'll create a nice flow to the wedding event. Wherever you decide to stay and no matter where the ceremony is held, your wedding is certain to be filled with memories you'll treasure for a lifetime.
