Plan Your Next Convention in Miami Florida by William Hauselberg

Article published on February 13th 2012 | Travel

Companies planning an upcoming convention have thousands of locations to choose from. However, Miami stands out above the rest thanks to an incredible climate, beautiful scenery, delicious cuisine, fine shopping opportunities and countless recreational attractions. In addition, there are a wide variety of Miami Beach convention halls available for use year round, making it a practical destination as well as an exciting one. Here are just a few of the top reasons to choose one of the many Miami beach convention areas for your upcoming event.

Exciting Recreational and Historical Attractions

Miami makes such a wonderful convention location thanks in large part to the wide variety of attractions for convention attendees to enjoy during their free time, as well as before and after the convention itself. Miami is home to plenty of fascinating local attractions, including the Miami Zoo, the 12th century Spanish Monastery, the Miami Seaquarium and the Lowe Art Museum. Of course the beaches in Miami are also very popular and make for a wonderful way to spend a few hours. As the climate in Miami is tropical, tourists can swim and relax on the beautiful beaches at any time of the year.

World Class Shopping Opportunities

Miami is know for being one of the best shopping destinations on earth, and convention attendees will love being so close to some amazing shopping locations. Whether visitors are in the market for upscale designer clothing, local produce or cutting edge electronics, everything can be found in Miami. Both Lincoln Road and Collins Avenue are popular pedestrian shopping areas, complete with restaurants and cafes along the way to break up the shopping trip with a drink or a bite to eat.

Top Ranked Dining Establishments

There can be no denying that one of Miami's greatest attributes is the incredible local cuisine. With a diverse population you can expect to find a range of food available, from upscale Brazilian steakhouses to casual taco stands on the street. Many of the best restaurants are located just a short distance from the most popular Miami Beach convention areas, making it ideal for attendees to walk to these fine restaurants for lunch or dinner. With over 6,000 restaurants in Miami, expect to find several wonderful establishments close to your convention destination. Indulge in the New World cuisine made famous in Southern Florida, and be sure to try some fresh local seafood.

With several convenient Miami beach convention halls, unparalleled dining, shopping and exciting recreational attractions, it is clear that Miami is an ideal choice for conventions year round.
