Bologna Things to Do by Lek Boonlert

Article published on November 29th 2011 | Travel Tips

Bologna has many attractions and activities for tourists, from cooking classes to guided walking tours. There truly is something for everyone in Bologna.

The most appealing attractions, which have proved most popular over the years, are of a historical nature and tourists will discover that this city is rich in character. Also very popular things to do are guided tours of the city, which is a great way to learn more about its most popular tourist attractions. Half-day tours are also a great way to discover the region, such as a trip to Parma, famous for its cured ham and lesser known as home to Verdi.

Piazza Maggiore, which is known for its vibrancy and charm, is well worth visiting during your trip to Bologna. Piazza Maggiore was created around the thirteenth century and is close to the areas containing many of the popular restaurants in Bologna. The Fountain of Neptune (Fontana di Nettuno) is breathtaking and made up of highly detailed bronze statues, should be part of any visitor's itinerary. Further attractions are available in the city's very lively University Quarter.

Numerous clubs and bars open in the evenings. As there is a high student population in Bologna, the bars and clubs are usually busy, lively and open until 5am. Kinki and Link are the two most popular clubs in the area and both attract a fashionable and well-heeled clientele.

Hotels in Bologna are plentiful and many are located close to the main tourist attractions. Hotel staff are very friendly and are able to advise on activities and events taking place in the area.
