It should be like beginning with great gloss and then faltering at the midway. In fact, there are several instances that highlight this particular fact. Campaigns being launched with lot of gloss and exposure, but after a certain time, positive results start to fade away. The Marcomms agency is entirely responsible for such happenings. An experienced agency will never go for false marketing investment. Rather, they will always try to bring out the best results with minimal resources. Small budget campaigns are not worthless at all! They need to be conducted properly. And to make this happen, a good and reliable agency is required. Such agencies will always try to provide the best solution within limited budget.
