A Short Guide to Finding Spring Outdoor Wedding Venues by Kindra Leomiti

After enduring the winter months, everybody anticipates the coming of the spring season. This is when the whole world seemingly wakes up from a deep sleep, when the sun extends its rays of warmth once again, and when budding flowers start to bloom. It is one of the best times of the year to feast your eyes on the beauty of nature.

Springtime is also known as the wedding season—many couples prefer to get married when nature is at its most beautiful and most romantic. With several kinds of flowers in bloom during this season, it isn't very hard to enhance a wedding venue with sprays of flora. And since springtime is neither too cold nor too hot, couples and their guests can flaunt their tuxedos and fancy gowns without being uncomfortable.

Although a lot of pairs go for spring weddings, it doesn't mean that you cannot set your own wedding apart from the rest. You can start with the flowers—instead of using common spring flowers for your wedding, why not find flowers that are in bloom during spring yet are still quite unique, like peonies, gerberas, and lilacs? By being a little creative, you can make your wedding something you won't soon forget.

Wedding venues are also a dime a dozen, so if it was just a matter of having a place to hold the ceremony in, then you wouldn't have to worry. However, the occasion is special and everything has to be perfect. Since there are a lot of other couples who plan to wed in the same season, you better pick a place early so you can get the best wedding venue.

Spring weather is too beautiful to go to waste and you might want to take advantage of it by having an outdoor wedding. If you want a garden wedding, the wedding venues in Pasadena CA are hard to beat, as these and other South California wedding venues consist of picturesque gardens and tranquil parks. South California hotels also have scenic outdoor areas that you can consider for the ceremony.

The season is also perfect for a beach wedding. Travel farther north from Pasadena and you will get to San Jose. If you think that garden weddings are too common for spring, you can check out beach wedding venues in San Jose CA and let your guests enjoy the fine Californian sand and azure waters.

Other coastal options that are worth a look include wedding venues in Santa Barbara CA. The Mediterranean climate in the area brings out the best of spring and would be good for any wedding ceremony. For more information on spring weddings, check out this article:
