Cellulite could be difficult to get rid of. And that's a large problem, seeing how it affects the vast majority of women.

Cellulite is defined as a topographical skin condition connected to the anatomy directly situated beneath the skin. It predominantly occurs in women, and is visible mainly in the pelvic buttocks, and thigh regions.

Contrary to popular opinion, this state isn't the result of a bad diet or lack of work out. Although both these factors can add to the prevalence of cellulite, they don't cause it. Though they won't completely remove the cellulite, they could drastically decrease its prevalence.

Therefore if diet and exercise don't heal cellulite, what will?

Well, for starters, the idea of a "cellulite cure" is flawed "until now. Also the most advanced cellulite removal processes aren't permanent. Rather, they'll take away "or mask" the cellulite for a brief period of your time, then, while it unavoidably comes back, medication will need to be applied repeatedly. Though this isn't a "magic bullet" cure, it had been the sole option offered up till recently.

Cellulaze: A New and Promising Cellulite Removal Technology

Recently, in the world of cosmetic surgery, Cellulaze has been making a large impact. It's the latest advance in cellulite removal technology and the only one to make a statement by promising to remove cellulite from the body for up to two years.

Additionally, it works to stimulate the body's natural healing processes by using state of the art laser technology to alter the underlying anatomical problems. No other available technology now addresses the three anatomical issues related to cellulite, i.e., herniated bulging fat, thin skin and dimples caused by shortened/contracted soft tissue strands.

It's permitting the body to do its job naturally, with solely least intervention, ensuring the end result is fully natural.

Is Cellulaze for everyone?

Well, not necessarily. For that reason, your best bet is to talk to a Manhattan cosmetic surgeon while having the treatment. Though it's much more convenient and safe than the majority of cosmetic surgeries, it's still not something you wish to do if you don't want it. Rarely can cellulite be eradicated or improved by diet and exercise routines.

Another great feature of this modern technology is that the speedy results. Immediately following your treatment, you'll see improvement with final outcome happening over the subsequent months.

It's a very straight forward process that "in many cases" takes just 90 minutes. At the end of the procedure, you'll immediately notice that the Cellulaze has improved virtually all visible cellulite.

Lastly, not just does the treatment remove cellulite, it even stimulates collagen in the body to thicken and tighten the skin. Essentially, after the treatment, not only will your cellulite be dramatically improved or gone altogether, however your skin would retain its "youthful" look too!

Where to Get Treatments?

To experience this revolutionary new treatment, select only the best Manhattan NY cosmetic surgeon. Although it's a comparatively straight forward process, you'll still need to make sure the surgeon has received all necessary training and has a track record of satisfying patients. For this reason, consider Dr. Theodore Diktaban, a thirty four year veteran with a stellar reputation for precision work and unmatched patient care.
